SPECIAL NOTICES.

THIS LAST AND MOST SURPRISING OF ALL THE WONDERFUL PREPARATIONS OF DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD.

stated with regard to this remarkable preparation is literally

About fourteen years since a well known and influentis after enlogizing in the highest terms the merits of his ITALIAN MEDICATED SOAP, stated that there was yet ample ground for the exercise of his in outive genus, and that was the introduction of something which should equal the extraortinary merits of his world renowned Soan, but with the additional capability of teding applied to the skin in transitu, whether in a rairroad car or on a steamboat, where the use of the steamboat, where the use of the world be difficult, if not impossible. The lady in question was on the eve of a long journey, and therefore felt the importance of the discovery she as earnestly urged. The suggestion of his fair visitant struck the Doctor as being both notworthy and important, and forthwith set him to think it, the result of his deliberations being the elaboration of a lotton possessing all the requirements desired—and more. In short, as the delighted lady herself subsequently remarked, it worked with the potency of a charm in cleaning the pores; dispersing all those unsightly crudities of the cutcle engendered by a long exposure to the air, heat, and dust of travel; at the same time softening and beautifying the skin beyond all that the lady's most ardent imagination could conceive, and banishing every

O: course with such wenderful and pleasing results one bottle could scarcely be expected to satisfy this ambitious and most lovely lady, especially as abe had fair friends who were camorous to know the secret of her rejuvenescence; so another bottle, and another, had to be concocted, in short, without a single line of advertising this

found a business forced upon him independent of his previous extensive manufacture of celebrated cosmetics and perfumery) that speedily compelled him to enlarge the capacities of his well known laboratory, in order to keep pace with the demand. Here, then, is a notable instance of a truly valuable article working its way into public favor entirely by its own unascited merits.—Whout invoking the questionable add of trunding, dog carts, or beplastering the innocent rocks with startin, red paint! In fact, if Dr. Gourand could be capable of entertaining such a vulsar idea, the expertness of others in the time would have been suificient to convice him that he must fail on that point at least.

Of course, such a remarkable and valuable preparation as the ORIENTAL CREAM could not be expected to exist long without being counterfeited, and at this time there are many spurious and permicious articles bearing a something similar mane is existence, which, however, can do Dr. GOURAD and his customers no harm, providing they do not imboth his trace mark to counterfeit which is felonyl and providing also that acies is want of the gentine of Dr. GOURAD NAME (REAM purchase it directly from Dr. GOURAD).
